The above Design is for a Bath Stove which is executed at a Gentlemans House near Bond Street, it was invented by himself in order to prevent the Chimney from Smoaking and had the desired effect so that there is not the least doubt of its proving successful in any Chimney whatever

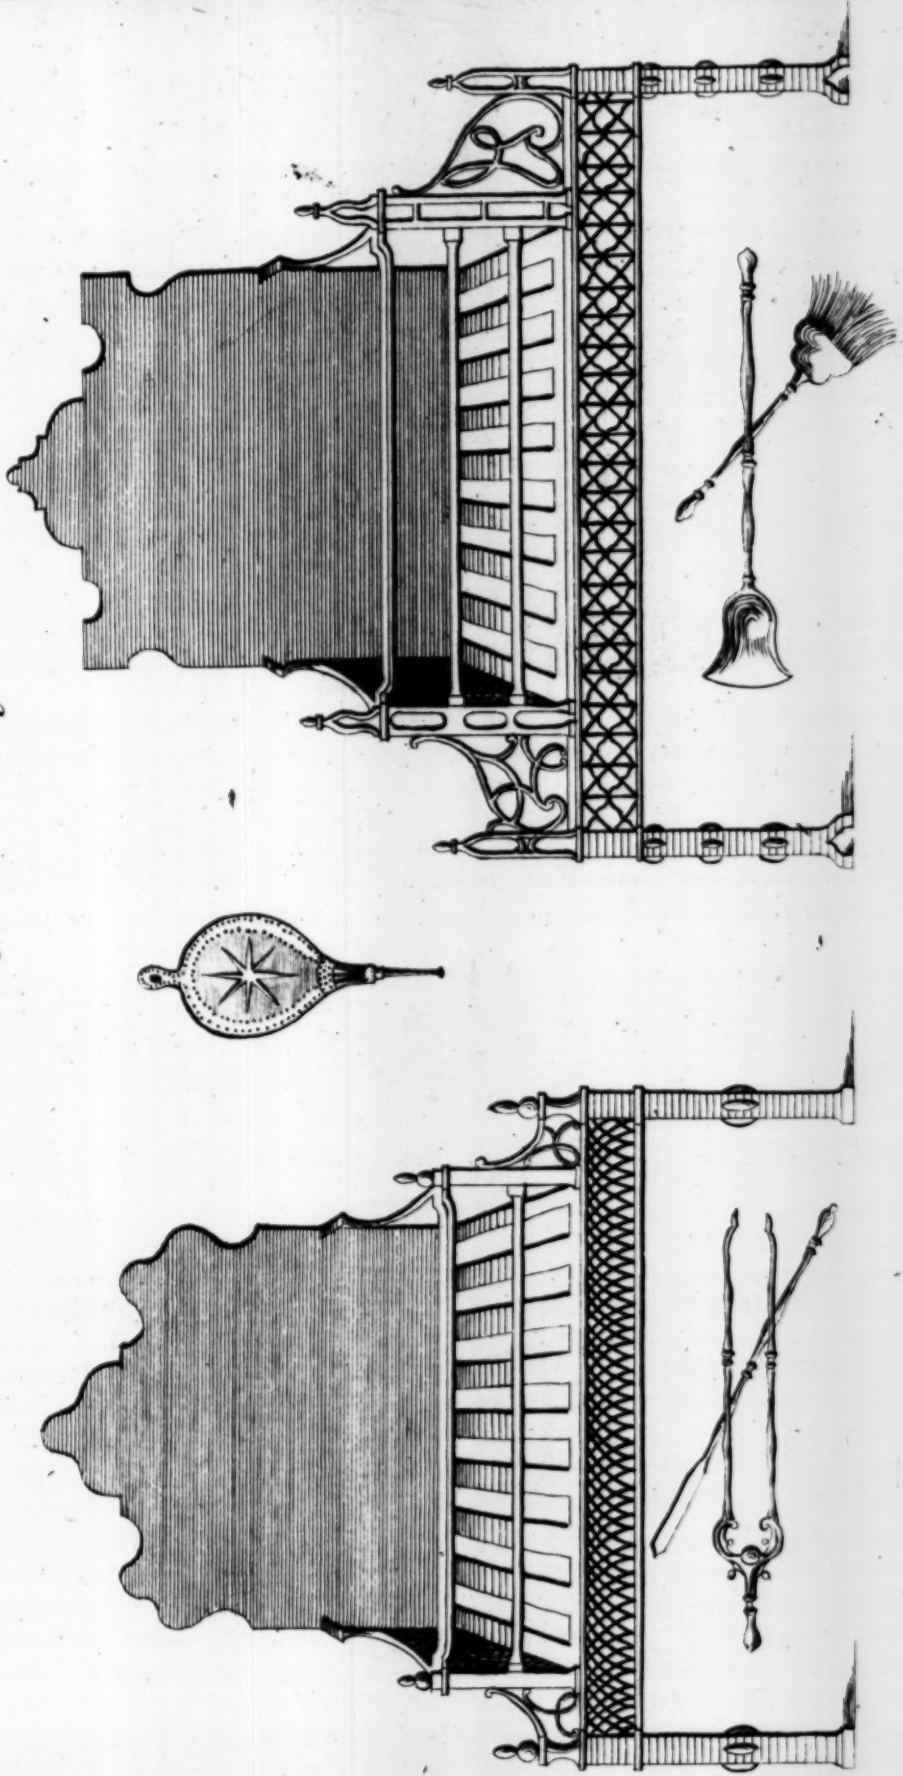

Explanation.

Let A.B.C. be the Marble Jambs and Mantle round the Chimney wherein the Stove is to be fixed D.E. the Plan on which the Stove Stands, The Hole at E shews a small Flue to be carried up behind the back of the Stove till it is about 3 Inches higher than the under Side of the Mantle which Flue will draw a sufficient Draught of Air so as to force the Smoak up into the Body of the Chimney and by that means cause an entire free passage. The measure of each part is found by the Scale.
